

When one door
of happiness closes,
another opens;
but often
we look so long
at the closed door
that we do not see
the one
which had been opened for us.