

"Courtesies
of a small and trivial
character
are the ones
which strike deepest
in the grateful
and appreciating
heart."

Henry Clay (1777-1852)
[the Great Compromise] American politician