

“Let us be more concerned about the adornment of our minds that are eternal, rather than adornment of our persons with things that are of no lasting benefit.

Let us keep the commandments of God; let us live humble, and sweet, and pure.

Let us not be lifted up in the pride of our hearts if we have been more successful than our neighbor financially, but let us evidence by loving kindness to every child of our Heavenly Father that we are grateful.”

--Pres. George Albert Smith--
